THE CONTRACT—A few weeks ago our wharves exhibited a scene of animation and bustle coarcely to be surpassed; ships erowding in at every access his point—the merry note of the mariner mingling with the die of the ar isan—access of casks, from a size that might afford comfortable winter quarters to a moderately numerous emigrants family, to dimensions that would hardly prove a stembling-block to Tom Thumb;—cheaking up every avenue and threatening the main-atreet itself with a formidable blockade. Now, "within a little month." all deserted, desolate, husbed, quiet as the flobbath; the untenanted pier swept and garnished, jutting forth with nothing to relieve its dult and native uniformity but here and there the single mast and elegant symmetrical form of a packet sloop—a smack, or so, at moorings—or, may-hap, side by side, a couple of coasters attracted as it were to the junction by a mutual sense of the general loneliness. What a theme this for the political economista—could such a change be traceable to the Tariff, what a pozerit would prove! But no; it is all simply and plainly accounted for in a word—it is the course and process by which the Whale Fishery is conducted. The few summer months are those in which the whole fleet from the Brazil banks are wont to return to port, discharge, refit, and again depart. For the prosent year they have had "their raturn to port, discharge, refit, and again de-part. For the present year they have had "their exits and their entrances" with all the bustle and stir thereupon attending, and now all is

IKEY SOLOMONS.

IMEY SOLOMONS.

Though when it was stated some weeks since that this Prince of "Fences" was re-apprehended at Hobart town, Van Diemen's Land, and was about to be sent for trial to London, the principal scene of his offences, the amouncement was received with derision and incredulity, the rumor of his capture by the colonial authorities proves to be true, and his arrival in the river may be daily expected.

The following particulars connected with his apprehension have been furnished to us by a person who was an eye witness of the transaction, and who has but just returned home in the ion, and who has but just returned home in the Bearcely had he arrived in a land of freedom, and secured an asylum from the penalties to which he had been subjected in this country, when the old passion returned, and he resumed his former iniquitous practices. Not content solely with these, he entered on another branch, and committed, in conjunction with two other persons, an extensive forgery on the national bank of New York. His companions were secured and punished, but he, with his usual wariness and tact, again escaped the fangs of the law; and from thence went to Buenos Ayres, where his restless disposition did not permit him to remain long in quiet. He here entered into, ostensibly, the jewellery business, and having a gentlemanly address, and the air of a foreigner, made it the medium of negociating fraudulent debentures of the local government, and discounting fictitious stock of the English, which was then at a premium. The frauds were at length discovered, and a friendly municipal having given him intimation that semething was brewing, he started off for Van Diemen's Land, where he understood that his wife and family wore residing. This hasty, and for him, very inconsiderate step, was the most fatal that he could have adopted. fied rhort parrative of his adventures since he ave adopted.

After the conviction of Mrs. Solomone, for having a quantity of property in her possession which was stolen subsequent to the escape of her husband, considerable interest was exerted at the Home Office to permit her children, four in number, to accompany her to her place of destination. The government took the application into consideration, and after some heuitation allowed her also everyone the approximation of the second section. allowed her, she paying the expenses, to take the two youngest, the one five, and the other two years of age, along with her; but peremptorily refused the two slier sons, who were grown up young men, to participate in the indulgence. They, however, were determined to follow their mother, and expectations a versue bound for mother, and embarking in a vessel bound for Sydney, took with them an assortment of goods mitable to that market. They immediately got into business, and hired an extensive store as general dealers, and here they remained, carrying on a rather prosperous trade, until the commencement of last January, when they suidenly removed themselves and their stock to Hobart town, where, having taken a spacious slop and concerns in Macquarrie street, they again resumed business, and conducted themselves with a much propriets, and evident appearance of insumed business, and conducted themselves with so much propriety and evident appearance of integrity, that they succeeded in obtaining the liberty of their mother. She, en her liberation, with the two younger children, were living with them, and business was going on successfully and creditably until the middle of February, when laey (the father) made his appearance, and took a part in the concern. His motives for going to these colonies, which are under the British jurisdiction, appear extraordinary, if not fatuitious, but in selecting Hobart town in the place of Sydney, be says that he did so from the belief that there were fewer, if any, of his old acquaintances at the former than the latter. In the comparison of numbers he may have been right, but in the consequence he was wrong, for though in a strange and foreign clime he met no lack of old acquaintances. He arrived on Sunday, the lath of February, and on the fullowing day was seen parading the atraggling streets of Hobart town with an air of confidence, self-possession, and indifference; but scarcely did he pass through one of them, or near any of the government or Penitentiary establishments, when he was recognised by his former "pals," and saluted with—"Oh! Ikay, my boy, how are you! Blow me but I am glad to see you: what a d—d lucky fellow you have been!" Misle others pointing him out to their friends, remarked—"Isay, there goes Ikey Solomon's; he used to fence my seeg. The d—d segue, if it was not far him I should not be here now."

At about three o'clock on flaturday, she flat, two constabler, in the diagulae of out-settlere, came justs his shop; one of them said he wanted some tobucco, and the other a pipe. On soming in they asked for the old gestlemen, as they preferred dealing with him to the young ones. Hey, who was behind the counter, started up and said, "I om the person," and instantly some of the men seized him, and said, "You are the man we want." On his apprehension they turned as puts as death, and after recovering from the stuper of a few moments, exclaimed, "So help pale as death, and after recovering from the atupor of a few moments, exclaimed, "Se help me God I am a gone man one; its all over with me. I am done for," He then made a rush towards a deak at the upper end of the counter, on which there was typing a pen-knife, which he endeavered to seize hold of, no doubt for the purpose of committing suicide, but was prevented in the attempt by the constables, to whose assistance four of the military, who were stationed outside, came with drawn bayonets and fire-arms. Having rendered him powerless, they hand-euffed him, and brought him before the Chief Police Magistrate of the Colony, and after his undergoing a short examination, and the Chief Police Magistrate of the Colony, and star his undergoing a short examination, and being identified as Issae Solomons, who stood capitally charged in the county of Middlesse, he was cammitted to gaol, in order to await the sailing of a return convict transport to the mother

On his being taken into custody, the property in the shop and house, which was of comiderable amount, were seized on by the Colonial Authorities, and it was shout being disposed of, and its produce appropriated to the use of the Crown, when the elder sons interfered, and, on their presentation to the Chief Justice, and producing its produce apprepriated to the use of the Crewn, when the elder sone interfered, and, on their representation to the Chief Justice, and producing satisfactory proofs that the major part of it belonged to them, its restoration was ordered. After the apprehension of her husband, Mrs. Solomons was removed to a cotton manufactory, (a more lenient kind of penitentiary.) distant about three miles from Hobart Town, and her younger children to an orphan school, established by Government, where she will be permitted at least once a week to visit them. Striet orders, however, have been issued to preclude the two elder sons, John and Moses, from holding any communication with her for the present.

In entering into the detail of the latter portion of the life of so singular a character, we have the authority of the person who has been hefore alluded to. He was present in Solomon's slop, in Hobart Town, when he was again made amenable to justice, and was witness to and had

The famous Blumenbach, the father of German naturalists, and who first turned his attention to the natural history of men, in relation to the different races, is very fond of showing to visitors a little library, really curious, and which he values very much. It is entirely composed of works written by negroes—and an examination of this somewhat large collection establishes the fact, that there is no branch of science of literature in which some of these men, whom it was once the fashion to consider as only a little better than brutes have not distinguished themselves.

DISTRESS OF THE WEAVERS

Few industrious men in this country can have any correct idea, from their own experience, of the narrow circumstances to which thousands of the narrow circumstances to which thousands of English operatives are reduced, not withstanding their unremitting exertions to provide a support for themselves and their families. The Carlisle Patriot enters into a minute specification of facts to show the necessities of these men, particularly the weavers. It appears from these data, that a hard working weaver, even when provided with full employment, cannot earn, on an average, more than 5a. 6d. storling per week. "In many cases, it is true, the wile and one or two children can earn a considerable addition to this sum; but it is also true that the weaver's expenses are increased in proportion as he derives this assistance from a family."—And moreover, it often happens that he has te as he derives this assistance from a family."—

"Every blockheed knows me by my tyle," says Porn. The article on the sei lement of the Catholic Question, in the last Entanumen Raview, has been attributed to JEFFREY. BROUGHAM, and LOCKBART, repectively; and by editors who are by no cans blockheads. One of our correspon lents-no blockhead either-thinks, and we ncline to agree with him, that the article is question bears strong marks of the pen of oung MACAULAY, whose paper on Ton's works and character is the most extraordinary in the whole series of the Review. We never forget, however, that when MOLLETT's first novel was published ano nymously, Lady MARY WORTLY MONTAGUE ascribed it, positively and without hesitation, o FIREDING. The LONDON MORNING HERALD, neither whig nor a radical journal, noticing a meeting at which HUNT and CONNETT were the leading rators, assails the House of Commons in this uncerimoneous language:—The Radical Reform wanted in Parliament, so far as Representation is concerned, there cannot be the least doubt. "It is a force to say that Parliament, for a great length of time, has been the Representa-tion of England. The greater part of the mem bers get in by bribery of some description; and, when in, the greater part are under the influence of the Ministry—because the greater part are gaping for pension, place, and power, both friends. As it respects reform, however, we think that it ought to begin with lessening the umber of Members. In the Commons House there are about 650 Members: they ought to be cut down at least one-half; for, as a general rule the more men there are to direct the business of any concern, the worse the business of the con cern is directed. Again, the more Members there are the more Bills, the more laws, the nere law books, the more litigation. What is it but the large number of Members that has given us such heaps of Acts of Parliament, that ven the Judges are puzzled to know what the law is Besides, the greater the number of Mem-State. Very few men get into Parliament but with a view, as Mr. Cobbett says in his Register, to share the taxes." It is a question wh Parliament has not been a bane instead of a bless ing to the country. It has brought on us a debt of 800,000,000%, and this causes excessive taxation. Indeed taxation and debt are carried to such a height, that we dare not resent the in-sults of other nations. We are in the same situation as a spendthrift is with respect to his They may thunder at his door, and write to his the most insolent letters, or speak to him in public in the most impudent manner; and ve he dares not retaliate, but is obliged to be civil, for fear of the consequences. The most arbitrary despot that ever existed could not have heaped debt on this country to the same extent that our Parliaments have. If some Reform does not ake place—if the present number of Represen tatives remain-if makers of Acts of Parliamen roceed as they have been proceeding for the last 100 years in the heaping of Act on Act, and the Representatives continue to be such greedy Leaders on the taxos -- we shall, by experience an alteration inevitably, for the taxeaters and Act-makers will bring the thing to be beyond all endurance. The people will becom sick of both Houses as well as of debt and taxation; and the first high-spirited King, of a Westchester, N. F. August 21.—On the afternoon of Friday last, our village was visited by a storm of rain and hail, accompanied with thunder and lightning, the most violent that has been experienced in these parts for several years. The sharp and brilliant lightning, and the heavy peals of thunder in rapid succession for above an hour, together with the blackness of the clouds above, and the heavy bedy of rain and hail, presented a scene at once the most grand and terrific. Late in the night, we sure, again visited by another storm, of almost equal force to the fermar. They both passed east, doing considerable damage to the farmers. We understand that Mr. Caleb Underbill, of Yorktown, lost a yoke of osen, which were killed by the storm that occurred in the night. They were found several feet apart, one on each side of a trea, which was struck with the lightning. A stack of hay, belonging to Mr. Jacob Valentine, of Somers, was entirely consumed, and trees, in several parts of the country, were rent in pieces by the lightning.

Utics, N. V. August 19.—An occurrence not unfrequent in New York, but entirely novel in this town, happened here last Saturday. A black man, calling himself James Eldar, who has resided among us two or three years, and by his industry and sobristy has acquired the good will of those who know him, was seized last Saturday morning, in our streets, as a runavay slave from the State of Kentucky. He was lodged in the watch-house for a short time, while the person claiming him as such slave was collecting his proofs. From the watch-house the claimant had him taken to the office of a magistrate of the country, for the purpose of obtaining from the magistrate the certificate required by the act of Congress to authorise the claimant to take him out of the State.

The claimant must, among other proofs, produce an exemplification, under the sea of the State, of the Statute of Kentucky, authorizing the holding of persons to labour or service. In sh and to the fact that the relation of master and alave did subsist between the claimant and the person claimed; but could never have been intended to establish the right of the claimant to hold the person claimed in servitude. As the claimant was not prepared to produce such exemplification, the magistrate dismissed the case. The black then took his hat and walked out of the office. At the door he was received by several friends of his own colour, who, it is said, fearing another attempt against his liberty, sent him, post-haste, to Canada.

Just as the claimant was proceeding to offer his proof before the magistrate, he was served with a writ of habeas corpus, returnable instanter before the Supreme Court, then in session in the village; but as the Court refused to interpose, and remanded the case to the magistrate, no mention of the writ has been made in some going statement.

New York, August 24.—The remains of Miss Sarah Robinson, daughter of Captain Henry Robinson, who died in Paris suveral months since, were brought home in the packet ship Charlemagne, and conveyed on Saturday afternoon to Newburg for interment. Miss R. was only 15 years of age, and her death excited the most poignant regret and sympathy for her pamoet points.

The Spanish Fleet.—What has become of it? It easied from Havana on the 8th July, and on the 11th was in lat. 21 30, los. 92 30—being two thirds of the distance to Vera Cruzin five days. At that time and place the transport ship lingham was separated from the rest of the squadron in a gale, and afterwards arrived at New Orleans to repair their damages. Nothing later has been heard from the guadron, although we have Havana dates to Aug. 10, and Sissal to July 22d. Query: if it requires five days to run from Havana to the point where the squadron was overtaken by a storm, how long ought it to require to run from the point to Vera Crus, and remit information from thence to Havana? Thirty days from the date of the storm, or thirty-five from the day of sailing, it appears, were insufficient for this purpose; although the distance to be run, back and forth, could not have exceeded 1600 miles. Unless the bear from it soon, we shall begin to think this new Armada is at the bottom of the Gulph.

A most melancholy occcurrence took place in Johnson, Verment, the 30th ult. Mrs. Beecher, wife of Harvey Beacher, in a state of mental alienation, murdered her own child, which was nine months old. For some time previous she had been considerably deranged, fancying that she should die soon; that her children would be acattered, and left to suffer, especially her infant; but she appeared perfectly affectionate and inoffensive. In her life she has ever maintained an amiable and christian character and discharged her domestic duties with fidelity and diligence. And so constantly solicitous was she to promote the happeness of her family that ne suspicion was aver excited that she harbored the least malice against any individual.

On the fatal day, at noon, she appeared more rational and cheerful than usual. After a short absence, her husband came into the house, and saw her engaged in laying out a child. His first thought was, that she fancied the child would not live. He entered the room and laid his hand on the child's face; it was cold. He asked, "would it not have been better to have been reading the Bible and praying?" She than said, "the child rolled off the bed, rired and appeared to be in distress. I thought it would be beyond distress, if it was in another world, and if living it would soon be motherless—I took a small chair-post and smote its head—The poor child

The Albany Daily Advertiser mentions a remarkable case of an impostor, who made his appearance in this eity two or three weeks ago.—
He called himself Dr. Jackson, from England, was plain in his dress, unassuming in his manners, and interesting in his conversation. He professed to have about $12,000 in his possession, which he wished to invest. He conversed with different persons disposed to borrow money on land and other property, and agreed to lend the trustees of St. Mary's Catholic Church $8000, filling up a check for the sum on the Mechanics and Farmers' Bank of Albany. He wished to borrow fourteen dollars, saying that he was not disposed to draw on the bank for so small a sum, and at once received it from one of the Trustees, but afterwards returned it and received back the check. Subsequently be received the $14; and but afterwards returned it and received back the check. Subsequently he received the $14; and then, sending the mortage, and other papers delivered him by the trustees to an attorney to be prepared for the speedy completion of the businese, and calling afterwards to hasten the conclusion of it, he disappeared, and has never since been heard of. It preved that he had never made a deposit in the bank, although he had talked of it. The Daily Advertiser says that he can hardly be supposed to be a swindler, for he had it in his power to obtain a much larger amount of money, the greatest confidence being placed in his integrity.

STATE OF TRADE.

The trade of this town, though by no means in a state of stagnation, is far from being in a satisfactory condition. American produce of all kinds continues to be depressed, and the losses suffered in consequence of sit depreciation must be felt severely on both sides of the Atlantic. The accounts from Manchester are also unfavorable, saveral failures have taken place there in the course of the last week, among which is mentioned that of Mr. S. R. Brooke, the Deputy American Consul, for the sum of 80 or £100,000.

A CURIOUS DISCOVERY. Chinese Sensitive Leaf,

Chinese Sensitive Leaf, INVENTED BY JAN PERVISTA CHASELETA.

THESE Leaves, plensing even at first aight, are able to divert a whole company; their impartial judgment gives sufficient matter for joccos entertainment; and if care be taken to put them between the leaves of a book, they will never lose their virtue.

To know the temper of a person, place the Leaf in the palm of his or her left hand, and it will immediately, move off stach! If the person is of a snagatine temper, it quickly rolls itself up and fails from the hand. If he is of a choleric temper, it rolls on an amove towards the wrist.

If of a phlegmente temper, it will only bend a little and remain in the palm of the hand. In the hand of a person of an even temper, it will move in a very pleasing manner, neither too fast nor too slow, the name as inclives, a person, at first sight, will not know them to be artificial.

These Leaves, in the shape of a Fish, Chinese Wemen, Mermaids, sic. ore to be had whole-ade and retail, at No. 23 Chesont street, Philadelphing and at the principal Looking Glass and Fancy Stores in this city.
